50 FASHIONABLY BRED SCOTCH SHORTHORNS

SATURDAY NOVEMBER 30, 1946

Auction to be held at

MARELLBAR FARM, Libertyville, Illinois

AUCTIONEER JACK HALSEY ASSISTED BY HAM JAMES

An Appreciation

This sale offers an unequalled opportunity to select bulls that will put your herd among the leaders of the Industry, to select heifers that represent the very best in the bloodlines that have made and will continue to make successful Shorthorn history.

In recent weeks many breeders and other livestock experts have visited the three herds from which the cattle for this sale have been drawn. It is their opinion that these Shorthorns constitute as fine a lot as have been offered by auction in recent years. All are young cattle with their productive lives before them. Every pedigree is of the sort from which the best cattle of the breed may be expected. Every individual is of the type and character that is necessary if production of the highest quality is the breeder's aim.

The bulls that head these herds are among the best and most potent in America. The cows in the herds include the tops at many prominent sales, champions at some of the biggest shows, the best from Scotland, the best from Canada and the best in the United States. This sale is the place to procure superior values. These Shorthorns have not been and will not be excelled in any sale of the year either as individuals or from a pedigree standpoint. And best of all the reputation of the herds from which they come is such as to add prestige to the herds into which they will go.

—Will Johnson of the Shorthorn World

Ringwell Farms

From the days of Amos Cruickshank to the days of the first International following World War II, there have been thousands of men with sufficient enthusiasm and imagination to undertake the breeding of Scotch Shorthorn cattle. It would seem that after this span of some 60 years of concentrated effort and thought on the part of this great group of illustrious breeders that there would be little left to accomplish in the betterment of the breed; that all heights of accomplishment had been scaled and that there were no new worlds to conquer.

Restive human nature, however, does not permit the acceptance of any such thought, that perfection is an accomplished fact. Each new decade brings forth its new crop of hopeful breeders, undaunted and full of courage — each with the conviction within his breast that his efforts will produce a line of breeding or at least one bull or female that will leave its mark on the pages of Shorthorn history.

In this, Ringwell differs not from the lot.

We will be modest enough not to claim that Klaymor Heir is the greatest bull in the United States, but we do believe that he has proved his ability to pass on to his progeny many qualities that will be helpful to even the most critical of breeders. We are happy to offer this good group of scale cattle to you.

Wm. Cruickshank, mgr.
